Max Doblhoff - born and raised in Vienna and also known and liked as one of the city's music insiders with the biggest heart. At the age of only three it was clear that his life would be centered on music. Back then he collected everything he could get from small cartons to boxes and tubs, so he could set up his selfmade drumset

In 1992, Max eventually traded his drumset for a pair of turntables. The vinyl collection grew quickly and now includes classics and rarities beyond genres - from house, funk, soul and acid jazz to hip hop and downtempo. Eager to share his favorite records with his friends he started promoting his own parties in the late 90s under his alias MD Groove. Since then Max never failed to impress his party people, infusing his sets with warm beats, different world music rhythms and seductive grooves as he blends his favourite tunes from a cross section of electronic and non-electronic genres past and present.

Yet, Max also worked in the studio of Julian Hruza for the past year. After teaming up with his Spanish rooted friend Sabbas Muck for their joint project "Doblhoff & Muck" their next single release "Train de Vie" is pending for January 2013. Slack'n easy they jump back to the good old days of Swing music and coat the track with amorous French vocals coming from Thierry Robert. In one of "Train de Vie's" versions you can even here self recorded samples from the Viennese Underground. How does this go together? Give it a spin.
